

Chinese Medicine at Colon Care, Inc.

920 N. Franklin, Suite 402

Chicago, IL 60610

312-664-7979

Acupuncture – the insertion of pre-packaged, sterilized, stainless steel acupuncture needles into specific points on the body. Used to adjust circulatory flow in the meridians (organized channels) of the body and promote internal balance. Contrary to popular belief, this procedure is not painful.

Moxibustion – the burning of the herb moxa. This procedure is performed close to the surface of the skin or on the ends of needles. Moxibustion is used to internalize heat in the body which helps to increase circulation and vital energy, relieve pain, and strengthen muscles and organ systems; a very relaxing procedure.

Acupressure Massage – the manual stimulation of acupuncture points and meridians. All the benefits of acupuncture without the needles!

Gua Sha Therapy – a type of deep tissue stimulation using a smooth-edged tool on lubricated skin. This procedure is used for long-term relief of tense muscles.

Cupping Therapy – the use of suction cups on congested areas of the body. This procedure is used to relieve tension and move stagnation out of the meridians. It works wonders on tight muscles!

Acupuncture treatment

$115.00 per 60 minutes (billable in 15-minute segments)

Facial Rejuvenation and Cosmetic Acupuncture

$125.00 per 60 minutes

$175.00 per 90 minutes

Prices effective as of September 1, 2005 and subject to change at our discretion.